WITH platform

The image displays the WITH platform interface. On the left is a sidebar with icons for home, documents, books, heart, folder, and list. The main content area shows a section titled 'African Music' with a description: 'The traditional music of Africa, given the vastness of the continent, is historically ancient, rich and diverse, with different regions and traditions. Music in Africa is very important when it comes to religion. Songs and music are used in rituals and religious ceremonies from generation to generation, as well as to sing and dance to.' Below this is a search bar and a grid of four items:

On the right, an 'Upload image' modal is open, showing a photo of a Mbira instrument. The modal includes a title field with 'Mbira', a visibility dropdown set to 'Public ("Attribution Alone")', and a description field with the text: 'Image of an Mbira Dzavadzimu, taken with an Olympus C-770 digital camera on 2005-11-11.' At the bottom of the modal are 'Cancel' and 'Save' buttons.

The head of the Stalin statue in Blaha Lujza Square
Budapest

In eastern Europe, the death of communist leader Joseph Stalin and the 'secret speech' of Nikita Khrushchev spurred excitement in the countries bound by the Warsaw Pact. Among them was Hungary, where an uprising ensued in October 1956 and Stalin's monumental statue was torn to the ground.

Transport & Travel

The 1950s mark the start of the golden age of mass tourism. As the first jet airplanes brought transcontinental traveling within reach, car constructors launched some of their most iconic models, while vespas, motorcycles and even motorized three wheelers provided the ultimate freedom to the more adventurous globetrotter. Browse these sets of Europeana images and label what you see – your tags will help guide vintage photography to our 1950s gems!

Film

Film & Theatre

Western, fantasy, comedy, animation, melodrama: the 1950s boasted a plethora of filmic genres, ranging from Disney to Kurosawa and from old-school vaudeville to cutting-edge science fiction. While an increased use of color aimed at whisking away the audience from their television screens, many an icon of the film industry - think James Dean and Marlon Brando - started their career in this era. This picture collection goes out to today's enthusiasts of the big screen and the small stage, and celebrates the fifties' writers, crews and performers that have contributed in their own unique way to mid-century cultural heritage.

All the ladies

The 1950s are often viewed as an age of conformity in which gender roles were clearly defined and uncritically adhered to. But beneath the surface, discontent with the status quo was growing. Having been part of the working force during the war, not all women were eager to return to being a wife and mother. This set of photographs features women in many different roles and guises, from glamour queen to business woman, and from homemaker to heartbreaker.
